

Az MTA BTK Irodalomtudományi Intézete és a CEU Department of Medieval Studies
tisztelettel meghívja Önt

Prof. James Hankins (Harvard University, History Department) előadására.

Az előadás címe: "The Political Thought of Renaissance Humanism."

Az előadás időpontja és helyszíne:

2013. június 11. 16 óra

Irodalomtudományi Intézet, Bp., Ménesi út 11–13. 2. em., tanácsterem.

(James Hankins életrajzát az angol nyelvű meghívó alatt olvashatják.)

&

The Institute for Literary Studies of the MTA Research Centre for the Humanities and the Department of Medieval Studies of Central European University

cordially invites you to the public lecture of

Prof. James Hankins (Harvard University, History Department)

"The Political Thought of Renaissance Humanism."

4:00 p.m. on Tuesday, June 11, 2013.

Venue: Institute for Literary Studies, Budapest, Ménesi út 11–13, IInd floor

James Hankins (Philadelphia, 1955) is a graduate of Duke University in Classics (1977) and Columbia University in History (1984). At Columbia Hankins studied with Paul Oskar Kristeller, for whom he also worked as a research assistant. Hankins has taught at Harvard University since 1985. He is an historian of philosophy and political thought, the author of numerous books and articles, and the recipient of many fellowships and awards. He is perhaps best known as the founder and General Editor of the I Tatti Renaissance Library, a bilingual text series, which will publish its 60th volume in the fall of 2013.

You can find a detailed list of publications here:

<http://history.fas.harvard.edu/people/faculty/hankins.php> and a longer biography with a photo here:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/James_Hankins